

Dr. Audrey Davis is an organization development practitioner with over twenty-five years of experience. In 1992 she began her company Positive Steps Consulting Services, working with private, non-profit and corporate clients across the country. She has consulted for state and federal agencies, providing teambuilding, strategic planning and coaching services to executive and leadership staff members. Her clients have included Johns Hopkins Hospital, Lucent Technologies, and University of Maryland Medical School, University Physicians as well as other entities across the country. Audrey's internal positions have included working as Director of Organization Development for Anne Arundel Medical Center for over 8 years and Director of Organization Development for Prince George's County Public Schools for two years. She holds a doctorate in Organizational Systems and Leadership from Argosy University. Her research looked at how employee engagement and work locus of control impacts job satisfaction. Audrey has co-authored an article entitled "Alternatives to Downsizing: an organizational innovation approach" in the July 2013 edition of the International Journal of Business and Social Science. Her masters and undergraduate degrees are from the University of Pittsburgh. She is currently director of Professional and Organizational Development at Prince George's Community College.